Summary of research activity

My research programs include aspects of the natural history of amphibians and reptiles, e.g. evolution, biogeography, ecological adaptation, biodiversity and conservation. I devote a particular attention to the Italian species, promoting, among the other things, the gathering of distributive data with the Italian and European herpetological atlases. I analysed with a special attention the ecology and the natural history of some amphibians worthy of conservation attentions, such as Pelobates fuscus insubricus (a rare Anuran endemic of Po Plain, N. Italy), and Salamandra lanzai (an Urodele endemic of a narrow area of Cottian Alps, described by me in 1988). Other studies concern the ecology, the evolutive significance of neoteny, and the morphological variability in the Alpine newt (Triturus alpestris). At the same time, on the basis of a constant field activity, I devoted since 1988 a special attention to the study of biodiversity of Madagascar, where I collaborate with the University of Antananarivo, the Parc Botanique et Zoologique de Tsimbazaza, WWF and WCS. With these organisations I realised many expeditions in several rain and deciduous forests, collecting information on the diversity of the herpetofauna and small mammals. I also developed my interests on taxonomy and phylogeny of several groups, describing many new species of Amphibians and Reptiles, with the application of modern techniques, among which bioacoustic, karyology, and biomolecular analysis.

Biodiversity and Conservation	→ Biodiversity analysis and conservation of the herpetofauna of Madagascar, with surveys in protected, non-protected areas, and anthropised areas and proposals of integrations of some species in CITES lists of endangered species.
	→ Ecology and population structure in the panther chameleon Furcifer pardalis , especially at Nosy Be (NW Madagascar).
	→ Conservation of the Italian herpetofauna, with reference to Pelobates fuscus insubricus , and Salamandra lanzai and many other species of NW Italy.
Biogeography and	→ Use of biomolecular and karyological tools for a phylogenetic and conservation approach in

- Systematics Amphibians and Reptiles of Madagascar and Europe.
- Taxonomic reviews of several groups of Amphibians and Reptiles of Madagascar and Europe.
 - Endemicity and vicariance of Amphibians and Reptiles of Madagascar, with a special reference to their distribution in rainforests, in refuge massifs.
- Ecological relation and networks
- Bioacoustics and environmental adaptations in Amphibians and Reptiles of Madagascar.
 - Analysis of the snake communities in Madagascar, with a special reference to shared patterns (in terms of guild structure and specific abundance) with other snake faunae in other tropical forests in the World.
 - Phyloptry, Ecology and migrating movements to the breeding sites in several Italian Amphibians (i.e. Triturus carnifex, Salamandra lanzai, Pelobates fuscus insubricus).
 - Age determination by skeletochronology: Triturus alpestris, Salamandra lanzai, Mantidactylus microtypanum, Boophis occidentalis, Macroscincus coctei, with a special relevance to the differences due to the adaptation to high altitude life and to the life in tropical environments.
